Occupation

Jutta von Falkenhausen practices law in Berlin. Having worked for many years in a large international law firm advising major business clients in the areas of German and international corporate and commercial law and transactions, she started her own firm in 2009. Today, the focus of her practice is to advise foundations and other non-profit organisations on corporate and commercial legal issues and to advise private individuals and institutions on establishing foundations and other vehicles for non-profit activities. Other areas of her practice are corporate governance and art law, in particular restitution issues.
