Experience

Vicky advises international and major Chinese financial institutions on a wide range of dispute resolution matters, including general commercial litigation, internal and regulatory investigations by the Hong Kong Monetary Authority and Securities and Futures Commission of Hong Kong (including search warrants and s.182 and 183 investigation notices), and covert raids (police and SFC).

Vicky graduated from the University of Hong Kong with bachelor's degrees in social sciences (Government and Laws) and law, before completing the Postgraduate Certificate in Laws at the same university. She was admitted to legal practice in Hong Kong in 2012 and speaks fluent English, Cantonese and Mandarin.

Vicky is currently Vice Chair of the Law Society of Hong Kong's Young Solicitor's Group and sits on the Law Society of Hong Kong's Risk Management Education Committee.

Credentials

Vicky's experience includes advising:

- a global investment bank in its defence of allegations by a former client that certain transactions in its account were entered into without its authority.
- a global tobacco products manufacturer in an administrative challenge to tobacco control regulatory measures (increase in graphic health warnings, ban on e-cigarettes) proposed by the Hong Kong Government.
- a global investment bank on full-scale investigations and responses to initial and follow up enquiries by all of the market regulators, including the SFC, HKMA and the Commercial Crime Bureau, including in relation to an investigation by the SFC into their role as a sponsor on the IPO of a failed public company.
- a major Chinese financial institution on two separated investigations and queries by Hong Kong market regulators, including SFC and HKMA, in relation to a complaint by its customer that certain transactions in its account were entered into without its authority.
