Introduction

The UIA Private International Forum is an annual UIA event where international lawyers meet to learn from each other and network in the thrilling Palma de Mallorca (Spain). In this first edition, the UIA Private International Law and Family Law Commissions team in collaboration with FBE Family Law Commission up to invite you to an extraordinary experience, which will make your delight.

In our societies, different family models coexist, reflecting cultural conceptions of the family from all over the world: de facto couples, single-parent families, homosexual and heterosexual marriages, contractual marriages, polygamous marriages, etc. The causes are essentially twofold: (i) the migration to a country of people from cultural, social and legal backgrounds very different from the host country; and (ii) the international dispersal of families as a result of the free movement of persons and the globalisation of businesses.

The challenges for any legal system to provide constitutional and legal protection for all the “family models” that coexist in a given country are growing, and the solutions offered by private international law in family and inheritance matters are limited. Moreover, there is a great diversity in the regulation of these presumptions in comparative law, and if the laws of the forum do not provide for these situations, the foreign laws that do usually contain “criteria of application in space”, so that they are applicable when examined.

Throughout the seminar, we will analyse the different legislative and jurisprudential options regarding these situations, as well as the consequences of their application for the family members.

The working sessions will be held over a day and a half at the premises of the Palma de Mallorca Bar Association. In addition to the academic programme, we will have the opportunity to meet colleagues and friends during the various social events: A welcome cocktail before the seminar and a series of optional social activities starting after lunch on Saturday, including the best Mediterranean cuisine, wine tasting and water activities. Internationally renowned Palma de Mallorca has a magnetic force that will make you come back.

Please be sure to not miss this seminar!

14:30 – 15:45 THE FAMILY AS A REALITY TO BE PROTECTED BY THE LAW AND THE DIFFERENT CONCEPTIONS OF “FAMILY” MODELS

In our societies, different family models coexist, reflecting cultural conceptions of the family from all over the world: unmarried couples, single-parent families, homo and heterosexual marriages, Islamic contractual marriages, polygamous marriages, etc. The causes are basically twofold: (i) the migration to a country of people coming from cultural, social and legal circles far removed from the receiving country; and (ii) the international dispersion of families resulting from the free movement of people and the globalization of companies. This introductory session examines the challenges for any legal system to protect constitutionally and legally all these “family models” that coexist in a given country. This is why a modern conception of the area should be called “Family Law”.

16:15 – 17:45 INTERNATIONAL SAME-SEX MARRIAGE (INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITION OF SAME-SEX MARRIAGE; WHEN TERRITORIAL BORDERS CAN MEAN DISENFRANCHISEMENT)

Same-sex marriage is spreading throughout the world and this trend is taking concrete forms in more and more legal systems. For those jurisdictions that do not recognize the institution, the explanations are varied and range from the invocation of international public order with the argument that such a family model is incompatible with the basic principles of the matrimonial law of the forum, to the thesis of situations created and exhausted abroad, or the so-called attenuated public order, to the full respect for foreign national laws through their application in the forum. This session will analyze the various practical options for dealing with these situations, as well as the legislative ones and the consequences of their application for the members of the family (parents and children).

Ilustre Colegio de Abogados de las Illes Balears – ICAIB
Ramblas 10, 07003 Palma

09:30 – 10:30 INTERNATIONAL “DE FACTO” PARTNERSHIP

The solutions of private international law in the absence of specific rules regulating international situations are limited. Moreover, there is a strong diversity of regulation of these situations in comparative law, and when the laws of the forum do not contemplate these situations, the foreign laws that contemplate them usually contain «criteria of application in space», so that they are applicable when there is a more or less close link between the members of the couple and the State in which they reside. This session will examine the possible solutions, ranging from the analogical application of matrimonial private international law to the thesis of “family rights and duties”.

11:00 – 13:00 ESTATE PLANNING AND ASSET PROTECTION SOLUTIONS FOR NON-CONVENTIONAL FAMILIES

While estate planning and asset protection are key elements of family wealth planning, the notion of family can be very different in each jurisdiction. Family and succession laws are generally deeply affected by the social and cultural background of a society, therefore the solutions for protecting family assets and for planning the succession of family members can be different from country to country. In this session experts will discuss these solutions available for non-conventional families, with special highlight to those living communities which are not recognised as families in their respective jurisdictions.

16:15 – 17:45 SURROGACY. NEW INTERPRETATIVE TRENDS IN INTERNATIONAL CHILD ABDUCTION

The surrogacy case of Ana Obregón has brought to the forefront the need to re-examine the ethical and legal parameters from which to address the problems resulting from the disparity of solutions contained in the various legal systems. In this session we will address the possible responses to this phenomenon, which is becoming more and more frequent in the globalized world in which we live, from the perspective of the family and also from that of the protection of minors.

On the other hand, taking into account the evolution of the social reality towards new family models, especially since the regulation of homosexual marriage, in this last session we will take as a starting point a fictitious assumption of illicit transfer (intra-European and extra-EU) of two minors born in Spain in the bosom of a homoparental family. In this way, the approach to the subject will be two-fold: on the one hand, we will proceed to analyze the possibility of recognition of double maternity based on assisted reproduction techniques in Spain and in a third country, and on the other hand, in relation to the abduction itself, we will proceed to explore the means of action made available by the Community instruments as well as by the 1980 Hague Convention to guarantee the return of the minors to their habitual place of residence. In this way, we will check how these interact with the domestic law of the countries involved, in order to achieve a better understanding of this phenomenon that affects more and more families in Europe and in the world, with special attention to cases of gender violence, the child's right to be heard and the interference of the Committee on the Child in this matter.
